Big July 4th Celebration At Marley

Repair Water Tower In Mokena

For several days last weekend, Mokena city water users were surprised when they found they had no city water. Upon investigation, it was learned that the water tower was being cleaned and painted inside with graph-ite paint.

The village fathers did not like the idea that they were unable to notify the water users, but the men who were contracted to do this work, came unexpectedly and as it had to be done when they were available, that is the reason. No one really suffered very much.

The water tank is also being given a coat of white paint on the outside with a new DuPont product, which is a self cleaning paint and the roof repaired.

Fourteen boys of Mokena, Troop No. 40 will leave next Sunday afternoon for a week at the Boy Scout Reservation at Morris, Illinois. Their Scoutmaster, W. J. Riemann, and Assistant Scoutmaster, Raymond McGuire, will be in charge of the troop at the camp site.

June Safety Traffic Month

As the month of June is designated as the Safety Traffic month, we have been running last week and this week, a special page and would draw the attention of the readers to it.

Traffic deaths are rated as taking 1-3rd of the nations deaths. According to the National Safety Council there were 96,000 deaths in 1945, of which 28,500 were in traffic.

More than 1/2 of the traffic deaths occurred at night and were partially due to inadequate street lighting.

Hopes for universal driver training among high school students brightened this year when the Illinois and Indiana state boards approved plans for the 1946-47 school years. High school drivers training courses will reduce accidents among teen age drivers by 50 percent it is stated.

YOUTH VANDALISM IN MOKENA CEMETERY

It has been many years, and perhaps never before, that the St. John's cemetery, south of Mokena has looked so neat and beautiful as it is this year and all the credit goes to the new caretaker, Mr. Nielsen. He has spared no time or efforts in making the city of the dead look so nice. All the old grave stones which have fallen over, he has straightened and in many instances, made new cement foundations.

This is a source of great satisfaction to those who have loved ones resting there.

But to some, who we might say, because of a peculiar turn of mind, and not caring to fill their time with constructive work, it has not appealed to them as a sacred place.

During the past week, Mr. Nielsen reports he has observed young boys of Mokena, aged around 16 and 17 years, going to the cemetery and trying to push over tomb stones as a sport. Mr. Nielsen is ready to use the law on any who molest in any way the property of this cemetery.

We hope this will not occur again.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson directed him and watched him take off again. It is hoped he reached his destination.

Mark and Bixler Vows Spoken In Frankfort Church

On Thursday evening, June 20 at 7:30 o'clock Miss Betty Mark, daughter of Mrs. Jake Hostert, and Herbert Bixler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bixler, both of Frankfort, were united in marriage at the Frankfort Methodist church. A single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. E. Winter, at a beautiful candle light service.

Miss Lillian Collins, organist, played soft music a half hour before the ceremony and immediately preceding the ceremony Miss Eleanor Keuch, niece of the groom, sang a medley of the choruses of "Indian Love Call", "Always", and "Till the End of Time". During the ceremony Miss Keuch sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Henry Mark, was lovely in a gown of bridal white satin, with an illusion neckline of tulle. Newsmen Admit Appreciation Of A-Bomb Missions

By Water A. Shead
WNU Correspondent

Aboard USS Appalachian (Via Navy Radio)—Civil and military welcoming committees out of the way, with the beauty and color of the Paradise of the Pacific a pleasant memory interlude in the midst of this serious military experiment the "Big Apple" today has her nose pointed westward on the second leg of our hop toward Bikini atoll and the atomic bomb test, the results of which may revolutionize naval tactics. The waters of the Marshall Islands are not new to the Appalachian and the members of her crew who first took her into combat duty in these very waters—the conquest and capture of Kwajalein, which is our next port of call. She is a sturdy ship and bears few scars of her tour of duty in the war in the Pacific in the Marshall, the Admiralty, the Solomons, at Leyte, the Marianas, at Guam and other action since Pearl Harbor. On this tour she is the press ship (Adm. W. H. P. Blandy's task force) and aboard are picked newspapermen and representatives of the other media such as news reels, radio, technical magazines, television and others. Although most of them are on other ships of the group, such as the Panamint and the Blue Ridge, there is a sprinkling of scientists aboard and a sort of friendly ribbing going on constantly between the "lay" of mine-run members of the press and these scientific writers, many of whom are members of the "I Am A Frightened Man Club" and predict dire results as dangers to personnel of this task force, when the bomb burst, scheduled July 1 takes place.

In spite of their fun poking, the newspaper men generally privately admit they feel some apprehension and beneath the raillery there is a feeling of tenseness among many of us which increases daily.

The trip thus far from Navy Pier in Oakland to Honolulu, where our two-day stay was all too short, has been like a pleasure cruise but now we are getting down to the serious part of this most stupendous military experiment in history. The information officers aboard ship offer every facility and we are scheduled for a series of round table conferences to orientate us to the main objectives of operation crossroads.

One of the most interesting phases of this operation is the time element. Fourteen different time zones are involved in the operation by virtue of the location of Bikini west of the International Date Line. For instance if the first atomic bomb is dropped at 10:00 A. M. Monday, July 1, it will be 5 p. m. Sunday, June 30 in Chicago.

As this is written out of Pearl Harbor we still have some 2,200 miles of trackless blue water to traverse at a speed of approximately 11 knots or about 13 miles an hour. Before we reach Kwajalein where we will spend a day viewing the elaborate installations which have been set up in quarters, laboratories, air facilities as a base for the army air corps which will drop the bomb and the 37,000 men of the joint task force.

The logistics and the planning which have gone into this operation will rival those in the invasion of Normandy and scientists in and out of the Navy have ready for installation the most elaborate measuring devices to meter actual effects of the explosion on the target array of combat and other ships, army and navy material, live animals tethered aboard some ships and ordnance for army, navy and air of all descriptions.

In addition recording devices, specially constructed cameras for television, radar controlled drone planes, which will fly thru the atomic cloud at varying heights will bring back samples of the radio active materials and vapor to be rushed to the laboratories for test. It is this radio activity for the exploded atoms which may be used for the benefit of mankind in peaceful pursuits. As a matter of fact, the Manhattan district is now releasing or has released small portions of radio isotopes and laboratories.

This first peace time Fourth of July in many years will be celebrated in traditional pre-war style at the 65th Annual Marley Fourth of July picnic at Storm's Grove, Marley. The end of gas rationing and other travel restrictions promises to bring the largest attendance of recent years.

The opening event of the day will be a parade beginning at 10:30 a. m., featuring floats depicting incidents in American history. Prizes will be awarded for the best floats and many organizations are taking part. Among those participating are the Maple Street Arbor of Gleaners, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Mokena, Marley Home Bureau, Marley Women's Club, Mokena Fire Dept., Marley Sub-Debs, Boy Scout Troop 60 of New Lenox, Marley Civic Club, The New Lenox Grade School band, and the Freeman Fellowship Missionary society, Sunday School, Brotherhood, and Sunday Evening club of the Marley Community church. Anyone wishing to take part may call Ralph Tilley for information.

The Reverend Ernest L. Snodgrass, pastor of the Bethany Union Church, Beverly Hills, Chicago, and a former pastor of the Marley Community church, will be the chief speaker at a program beginning at 1:00 p. m. There will also be vocal and instrumental music featuring the Marley Male quartet.

A baseball game will highlight the sports program at 2:00 p. m., and in addition, there will be races, stunts, pie eating contests, bingo, and games of skill for everyone. Pop, ice cream, and picnic lunches will be served continuously. Admission is free, and there will be ample room for family picnics and for parking cars.

The committees in charge of the picnic are as follows: Program, Paul Saunders, Glenn Peterson, Richard Gorham; Refreshments, James Frazier, Homer Sablin, Lauffer Bell, Harry Sproat, Charles Lauffer, Everett Bell and Julian Gorham. Lunch stand, Dan Sass, and Geo. Yapp.

BOY SCOUTS RECLAIMING MOKENA VILLAGE PARK

For the past many years the citizens of Mokena have been quailish when mention was made of the village park. This park which at one time was used for public activities, has been run over with weeds for many years.

But the Mokena Boy Scouts, Troop No. 40, with their leader, Rev. Wm. Reimann, have had their eye on this place for a project to improve and make of it again an attractive place in Mokena.

They approached the Village Board, who said they would give any reasonable improvement, their backing. That was the go sign for the Scouts, and they at once set in and cleared the place of dead trees, brush and overhanging limbs. They also built a permanent fire place with a chimney, for which the foundation was made by Mr. Geo. Marti.

Next the Scouts built two picnic tables and erected a target back stop for archery, material for the fireplace and tables being furnished by the Village of Mokena. Under present agreement, the Scout Troop is to be paid for cutting the grass in the park.

A schedule will be maintained for the use of the park by larger groups. The present schedule places the park at the disposal of the Mokena 4H Girls on June 26 and the St. John's church for July 7th for their annual picnic.

DESERT ROSE

By ROLLIN BROWN

W.N.U. FEATURES

Deputy sheriff Jim Doane sets out to track down a gang of train robbers. After he meets Dolores Alvaro and Monte Garcia he suddenly resigns his office and goes to see Star La Rue, a rancher and former gambling house operator. Jim forces La Rue to give him the ranch that he obtained from Dolores' father by trickery. He then goes to the ranch and puts a new crew in charge. Next day he starts out with two horses and encounters a posse led by sheriff Flick. The posse is pursuing five horsemen. Jim cuts across the trail and discovers Dolores in hiding. By a ruse she seizes one of Jim's horses and dashes away. The posse gives up the hunt for the day.

CHAPTER VII

Flick had been as close to success as the hound that snaps a tuft of hair from the escaping rabbit's haunch. The closing down of night was all that saved the fleeing riders. And Flick now knew that one of their number had been pushed into the brush and left behind. But tomorrow, he reasoned, would see complete success. He had already commandeered fresh mounts from Tres Hermanos, and he would hit the trail at dawn.

Dawn found a gaunt, long-legged blue roan saddle-animal in the horse herd that hadn't been there the night before. The roan wore Doane's saddle. Doane knew where it came from.

Flick invited him to come along, to be in on the capture. "Nope, sheriff," he replied. "Thanks. But I can't go. Got work of my own to do."

From shortly after noon until sundown Flick's men had scouted across the country trying to find where the trail came out. Meanwhile, time flew by, very valuable time! At sundown the sheriff had been forced to do something more than search futilely across a waste of rock and shale. Some decision had been imperative.

To Flick, the northeasterly direction of the trail, toward Maxmilla City, was ominous. He remembered what had transpired under his very nose in San Loreto. So at sundown he had split his men, the four one time Rancho Hermanos riders, led by Suarez, riding swiftly for the distant town. Flick himself, with the San Loreto deputy, intended to use the railroad from Sand Wells; arriving in Maxmilla City, he would gather more men and come down in a cross-maneuver.

Serious Situation Confronts Sheriff

Granting that the pursued were riding for the Maxmilla country, the move was as canny as could be wished.

"We'll get 'em," was Flick's dogged decision. "I'll show that outfit that there are some limits to what they can do!"

Doane was silent. Success for Flick might be a long way off, he thought; but he knew that the outcome of it all was certain now. Given time, Flick would do just what he said he would. Things had come to that pass. He was in too deep to back out. It was bound to happen, sooner or later. Flick and his deputy got an early morning train out of Sand Wells.

Doane was in Sand Wells that evening; he loped in leisurely, and arrived at the railroad station at about ten o'clock. He walked into Monte's office without bothering to knock, and surprised him over his instrument. He waited while Monte took down his message and turned off his key. Cigarettes were lighted, chairs tipped back against the wall.

"Well, senior el ranchero," smiled Monte through the smoke. "You have been riding, I hear! Burning saddle-leather an' wearing down good horse flesh. An' all to what purpose, may I ask?"

"Por nada," said Doane bitterly. "Nothing."

"So? Not failure?" asked Monte, in mock surprise.

"Yes . . . failure," mumbled Doane. "Funny how a woman can show a man up."

"Or a girl," said Doane. "I did all I could, Monte. After your story, I couldn't do much less. No man could!"

"Meaning?" asked Monte, suddenly serious.

"Meaning anything," replied Doane. "I don't care. My end of this thing seems to have turned out to be simple blackmail and bluff. None the less, that bluff, with the two thousand I gave La Rue, called his bluff and won the deal. It was the only way I could touch La Rue . . . except the way the girl was going at it, taking back what she could get of her own . . . Uh . . . Monte, you remember a sealed envelope I gave you not so long ago to keep for Miss Alvaro?"

"I do. It is in safe keeping."

"Good! Flick's out for blood. Soon or late, he'll draw it; I know Flick. That's serious. Monte, you've got to get that envelope to Dolores without much delay. It contains La Rue's deed for Rancho Hermanos. The papers are made over to her through me. Savvy? The ranch is hers, legally and otherwise. There's also a signed statement from La Rue to the effect that all charges he made against her are groundless. There's not much time to waste, Monte. You can give her those papers, now. And tell her to take them and get on Rancho Hermanos land where she belongs; to put those vaqueros of hers back to work, and stay there. So far Flick hasn't a thing that'll touch her, except La Rue's complaints. And I guess that's about all I've got to say, Monte."

Monte studied Doane. He lighted a fresh cigarette. He smiled slightly. He said:

"From the first I say that I will come to like you in the end. Mees-tair deputy Jim Doane. Yes . . . jus' so, my frien'. Doane, you are a man! Or, as we Spanish say, caballero, which has shades more of meaning . . . a rider, a brave man, and a gentleman. It is an expressive word, that caballero."

"Thanks, Monte. Gracias. Well, this finishes things. I'll be leaving Rancho de los Tres Hermanos by tomorrow. You might tell her that, Monte."

Monte rose gracefully, and as he bowed their hands met.

"There is jus' one thing," said Monte slowly. "I wish you had given this young lady her lesson. Why do you not ride her to earth, if jus' for the fun of it, an' show her you can do it? My frien', I wish that you accomplish that first, before you go away."

"You love her too, Monte."

"Why?"

"Oh, no reason," said Monte. "Only . . . well, there is difference between riding some cattle that justice knows belong to the house of Alvaro an' . . . a train robbery, or this last affair at San Loreto. You see?"

"One look at the girl's face shows she's no thief," snapped Doane. "Flick has no proof. I don't know what the explanation of these other affairs is, but . . ."

"My frien', have you thought of those men riding with Dolores Alvaro?" asked Monte. "They are ol'-time vaqueros; riders from the ol' rancho, or sons of those men. Good men, hard riders, no fools! Those three I get you for the ranch . . . they are of these vaqueros, senior. They would throw down their lives at her feet. But do you not suppose they say to themselves sometimes: 'We are already outside the law, why not make more of it? Play big. Get some money as well as a few head of cattle!' My frien', do you suppose they do not ask themselves that, eh? An' might that not draw a certain young lady into affairs that were far from her own choosing? Eh? Might it not?"

The telegraph instrument began to click. Monte listened for a moment, then turned like a cat and dropped into his chair. He began to write.

When it was finished, Monte looked up. He lighted a fresh cigarette. Then he picked up the message, poker-faced, and handed it to Doane.

"For you," he said simply. "I will be gone for a little while, to get the day operator to take my place tonight. Perhaps you will wait for me to return, senior Doane?"

Doane read the telegram as Monte slipped through the door. His face went white as he read it:

Jim Doane
Rancho Tres Hermanos
c-o Sand Wells Siding

Maxmilla City Cowman's Mortgage and Loan Bank robbed tonight. Over $100,000 securities and cash gone. Four men and accomplice pulled job. Beat me to it. Hitting back for your country now. Two citizens wounded. One dying. I'm deputizing you again. Doane, don't fail me this time.

Sam Flick

The sleepy day-man came into the office and took Monte's place. But it was a full half-hour before Monte returned, two handsome pearl-handled guns in holsters at his hips. The tigerish grace of the one-time gambler's every movement had somehow become accentuated.

"Shall we go now?" he said quietly.

Two men sat on a rock butte that overlooked a vast expanse of country. The hour was shortly past noon. Heat devils shimmered across the hot landscape. Eastward there was a tiny finger whirlwind that dipped playfully at a desert ridge, swirling a thin column of powdery dust skyward. One of the men searched the north horizon with a pair of small binoculars. The other man smoked many cigarettes, and he talked.

"Nevaire," muttered Monte Garcia, conversationally, "have I liked being wide awake, with open eyes, in the daytime. For me days are hot an' drowsy, so a man may sleep; nights are cool, for his work an' his play. Awake in the daytime, I feel seek—or maybe so it is only too many cigarillos."

"Take a look north," said Doane suddenly. "Looks like something stirring along the skyline there. Too far away to be sure."

Languidly Monte looked through the glasses.

"Perhaps," he said, and gave the glasses back. "Or perhaps a little dust whirlwind. But one thing troubles me my frien'."

"What is that?"

"I will be frank. It is you!" said Monte. "I do not quite know what you intend to do."

"Do you need to ask?" Doane snapped. "A hundred thousand dollars in this robbery. Two bystanders shot, one dying. Nothing less than murder, that killing! Do you have to ask what I'm going to do about it, if I get the chance?"

"Jus' so," said Monte. "But I do not mean the four men, who did the robbery an' shooting. I mean about the one called accomplice—the fifth rider! If it turns out that way, what would you do about—her? Eh? I wonder about that."

Silence. While Doane studied the horizon north, there was a long moment of silence. Yet Monte knew that the gesture was only mechanical and Doane saw nothing through the glasses. Sharply, he whirled.

"Don't ask me that!"

In a little while Monte smiled. "It is true then," he said.

"What is true?"

"You have seen this young lady—twice perhaps; maybe three times. But you love her. My question is answered. I, who have seen her many times—"

"You love her, too, Monte?"

"Hal!" exclaimed Monte Garcia softly. "How else could it be? . . . But only as a brother. Jus' like one older brother, my frien'."

Within half an hour a definite spot of dust could be traced on the flat north horizon. It did not weave like one of the finger whirlwinds and it had lasted too long, moving slowly forward. The spot grew in size and obtained slight length across the terrain. In three-quarters of an hour the glasses revealed pin-point dark dots preceding the dust. But it was as yet impossible to count their number with accuracy.

"Holding that course," muttered Doane, "they'll hit through those rock ridges and buttes somewhere to the left of us."

Garcia and Jim
Enter the Chase

Time passed. Monte Garcia watched a tiny, flecked sand lizard that sunned itself on the hot surface of a boulder. He smiled interestedly when the lizard caught a fly.

"That little fellow is like us," considered Monte. "He waits—an' catches his fly. But again it is different"—and Monte laughed ironically—"the fly has no power to hurt the lizard!"

Doane passed the glasses to him again.

"Count 'em, Monte! See if I'm right."

For a long while now Monte gazed through the glasses. His face showed no emotion when he said, slowly: "Five! Five riders!"

"Yes," agreed Doane, after moments had passed.

He became engrossed in a new study, a second seeming line of dust just showing on the horizon. In time this took form, minutely but steadily, moving. It followed the first. The actual distance separating the two bands of riders was probably six or eight miles. The visual panorama of the binoculars was vast.

"Flick couldn't have lost much time getting on the trail last night," muttered Doane. "Looks like half the population of Maxmilla City in that posse with him."

Monte, too, studied the second line of dust for a long while, seeming to smile.

"Jus' so! We used to say at the gambling tables: 'Watch out for the unlucky player when the cards once turn to him.' It is a true saying, my frien'."

The two men silently worked their way to the base of the butte. The hot sunlight slanted now with early afternoon. Two mounts and a pack animal were tied in a fringe of low mesquite shade. They watered the riding animals with a scant gallon or two from the pack tins. Blankets were smoothed, saddles re-set and horsehair cinchas tightened. All this was done leisurely, as though for a pleasure trip. Doane once more rode the big roan animal.

JESUS' FRIENDS CARRY ON HIS WORK

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:15, 16, 19, 20; Luke 24:45-49; Acts 2:46, 47; 5:42.
MEMORY SELECTION—Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

Friendship brings results. We respond to it with our own interest, and by our desire to bring others into its helpful circle of influence. Obviously, the man who knows the friendship of Jesus wants others to meet his Friend and know his love and power.

The disciples had seen the risen Lord, a privilege which carried with it the responsibility of declaring the good news of completed redemption to all the nations of the earth. We find them engaged in

I. Blessed Preaching (Mark 16: 15, 16, 19, 20).

The call and commission of the Lord before he was caught up into heaven was clear and definite. How glad we are that the disciples obeyed, went and preached, and had such blessed results.

The response of these early Christians was immediate and enthusiastic. Would that such a spirit had characterized the church through all the generations since then, and if it had, the commission would long since have been carried out. It has been estimated that if everyone in a church of two thousand were to win one soul a year, and each convert win one soul each year, the world would be evangelized in less than thirty-five years. Why not?

But while on the whole the church has failed, there have been valiant souls all down through its history who have given themselves to the business of preaching the gospel. With them, as with these of the first century, the secret is ever, "The Lord working with them."

II. Powerful Witnessing (Luke 24: 45-49).

The death and resurrection of Christ made possible the preaching of repentance and remission of sins, the message of redemption which was to go out to all nations through the disciples.

They were witnesses of these things, they spoke that which they knew and had experienced, and so their word carried weight and conviction. That, however, was not the secret of the success of their efforts; there was something more.

It is never enough for a man to speak of the things of God, no matter how brilliant and eloquent he may be, nor how certain he may be of his facts. He must have the power of God.

The early believers were to tarry until they received the Holy Spirit. We need only yield to him for he is present with every believer—the indwelling One—ready to empower and use us.

We need a real revival of the Holy Spirit power in the church, and we need it now. If the church as a whole will not yield to God, let us do so as individuals that we may be witnesses with power.

God is looking for men. He has always honored those who in faith have obeyed his command. The whole history of church and missionary endeavor bears eloquent testimony to that fact.

III. Glad Soul-Winning (Acts 2:46, 47; 5:42).

There are a number of things in this passage. There is the fine fellowship of the believers in the early church. We also note that they were regular in their attendance at the temple. They preached and taught both in the temple and at home. But the significant thing which we wish to note now is that it all resulted in the salvation of souls.

The Lord added to the church "day by day those that were saved," for such is the proper reading of verse 47. Day by day souls were won for Christ and added to the church. Why do we not have more churches of that kind today?

The church, which is so much the center of life for Christians, is not as well understood as it should be. We have come to regard it as just one organization among many competing for the attention and interest of men, when it is really a divine, living organism established by Christ as his body and representing him in this world.

The church is made up of those who are saved (v. 47), those who have received the word by faith and witnessed a good confession of their faith in Christ (v. 41). This is a fact to be remembered in a time when there is so much laxness in receiving members into the church. It is not a religious or social club. It is not a rallying place for those who wish to work for some economic, political, or social project. It is not a gathering of good people who wish to share common interests.

The church needs to cleanse its rolls of all unbelievers, all hangers-on, and to get back to the purity which it had when only those were received who were manifestly "added" by the Lord (v. 47).

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Disabled Vets Producers

Disabled veterans on occupational therapy farms operated in connection with 31 veterans' administration neuropsychiatric hospitals will this year attempt to surpass their last year's record production of 9,857,000 pounds of foodstuffs valued at $948,676.

The higher goal set for this year will aid in conserving other foods for feeding the hungry in Europe, but it will also furnish thousands of patients in VA hospitals with fresh vegetables, fruits, eggs, milk and meat. Although the agricultural activities on VA farms are operated primarily to provide beneficial therapy for patients, all of the food grown is used in hospital kitchens and none is wasted.

During the past year, more than 2,000 patients in the 31 VA hospitals spent a total of 2,263,000 man hours cultivating gardens and tending cattle, sheep, hogs and chickens. They provided the dietetic departments of the hospitals with a total of thousands of pounds of badly-needed food products.

The largest farm is at Chillicothe, Ohio, where 1,444 acres is devoted to truck gardening, wheat and barley crops and pasture for dairy herds.

Questions and Answers

Q. My husband was killed in action on Luzon and I have had several tell me I may be entitled to get a loan to build a home under the G.I. bill of rights. Is this true? And if it is not, then I as one of the many widows of this war think we should be able to. I have three children and have to pay $48 per month for rent which I could be putting into my own home.—Mrs. S. M. S., Littlefield, Texas.

A. As a widow you are not entitled to loan privileges under the G.I. bill. You are, however, entitled to (1) all your husband's back pay, plus a gift of six months pay from the army, (2) a pension for life for yourself and a pension for each of your three children until they are of age. Unless you have already done so, you should make application immediately for back pay allowances to claims division, general accounting office, office of special settlement accounts, 27 Pine street, New York 5, New York. For your pension write all details or visit personally your nearest Veterans' administration hospital or office at Amarillo or Wichita Falls.

Q. My husband has been in service 16 months, 5 months in the states and overseas 11 months. We have one child. What I want to know is does he get two points for the 11 months overseas. Do they get two points a month now? —Mrs. F. C. T., Marshall, N. C.

A. He receives one point a month for each month of service and an additional point for each month overseas, up to September 2, 1945.

Q. My husband has been in service 18 months and overseas 10 months. He has 42 points. All the boys who went with him have already come back. If my husband is still in the hospital, he has been there over 3 months. Do you think he will get home soon?—Mrs. O. C., Tishomingo, Miss.

A. I have no way of knowing how long he will be in the hospital. If he has 40 points, he should be home by June 30, 1946, unless he is detained for some other cause.

Q. I am a widow with four children, my husband died in 1946 during World War I. His death was not connected with the war. I have reared my children from the time of his death until now, 30 years, without an income of any kind. He died before he was enlisted in World War I. Am I entitled to a widow's pension?—Mrs. K. M. C., Union Church, Miss.

A. No, since your husband was never in the army, you are not entitled to a veteran's pension.

Q. My husband was discharged from the army November 21, 1945. He had a war bond coming at that time and hasn't received it as yet. Where should I write to find out about this?—Mrs. J. L. C., Lewisport, Ky.

A. Write to war bond division, U. S. Army, 4300 Goodfellow blvd., St. Louis 20, Mo.

Q. My husband was drafted into the army in August, 1944. He landed in India in August, 1945, and is still there, not expecting to be home any time soon. How many points does he have?—Mrs. M. D. P., Blue Springs, Miss.

A. As of September 2, 1945, your husband had 13 months' service, or 13 points, plus 1 month overseas or an additional point. If he has no children and no decoration or battle stars, he then has 14 points. No, he will not continue to earn points after September 2, 1945, the army now considering length of service.

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE

HOW MANY TIMES DID YOU "BEAT" THE LIGHT THIS WEEK?

*Accidents Don't Always Happen to Somebody Else!
Check Up on the Chances You Take Every Day!*

Today traffic accidents are multiplying alarmingly! With the average car over eight years old... with bad brakes and dangerously worn tires, accidents involving worn-out equipment have more than doubled! And with Victory, drivers began cutting loose. In the four months after gas rationing ended auto deaths jumped 36%!

And our record was already disastrous! Between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day more people were killed or injured by all types of accidents in America than were killed or wounded in the war! Here, "safe at home," 355,000 were killed—1,250,000 permanently disabled:

Certainly, somebody should do something about it. But the only one who can do anything really effective... is you! For most of the accidents that happen... are caused by the little things we all do, unthinkingly, every day. The careless little chances we take driving our car or crossing the street. The little repairs we neglect to make.

It's up to you! You can cut down America's accident rate—simply by not letting an accident happen to you: Check up on your accident-breeding habits right now. How many times a day do you take the chances shown here? Watch yourself.

THEY WERE BEATING IT, TOO!

They didn't think they were taking much of a chance—stepping on it when the light was changing. Like you, they'd done it dozens of times—and gotten away with it. Yet most of the 950,000 people who were injured or killed in auto accidents last year thought they were only taking a little chance. How about you? Do you think an accident can't happen to you?

- ☐ I beat the light occasionally
☐ I never take a chance on a light

Law On The Farm

SHEEP-KILLING DOGS.—In many Illinois counties the raising of sheep is virtually prohibited by the large numbers of stray dogs which roam the countryside and molest flocks. Sometimes it is not strays, but the neighbor's dog, that is responsible. In either case flock owners frequently turn to the law and its enforcing authorities for assistance.

There are four distinct forms of legal protection against dogs. First is the license requirement. The purpose of this is to make dog owners more responsible with respect to the dogs they keep and to build up a county indemnity fund for livestock owners whose animals are killed or injured by dogs. Maximum indemnities are as follows:

Sheep or goats, $15 per head; Cattle, $75 per head; Horses or mules $50 per head; Swine, $25 per head; Turkeys, per head.

To secure the indemnity the owner of the injured livestock must present a claim to the township supervisor and follow a definite procedure prescribed by Law. In counties not under township organization the claim should be presented to a justice of the peace.

A second form of protection exists in the law which allows the owner of domestic animals to pursue and kill dogs when they are discovered in the act of killing, wounding or chasing domestic animals. This law confers the right to kill a molesting dog when the dog is not accompanied by the owner.

A third act of the legislature allows a sheep owner to put out poison for dogs, so long as he does it on his own premises and with reasonable care and good intentions.

A fourth law provides that the owner of animals killed or injured by dogs has a right of action against the dog owner for all damages caused by the dog.

These measures have all done some good, but when the number of stray dogs becomes as large as it is in many areas they are not very effective. It would seem that either cooperation among farmers or rigid measures by local authorities are the only solution in these localities.

Anyone interested in dog laws may read all the acts mentioned above in Chapter 8 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, Sections 12A to 23. Copies of these acts may be procured from the Secretary of State, Springfield, Illinois.

No dog tax is collected in Cook County. It will take a legislative act to do this.

Life-Saving Spiders

A spider web of wire helped save the lives of thousands of men adrift at sea in lifeboats during the war. The web was a radar device which weighed slightly more than a pound and which reflected the radar signals sent out by planes or ships. The reflections showed up as pinpoints of light on the search craft's radar scope, indicating the raft's position.

Farmers Are Still Trading In Wisconsin's Small Towns

By E. L. KIRKPATRICK

WNU Features.

Only one in four of Marathon county's (Wisconsin) 7,200 farmers buys lumber, cement and feed in Wausau (county seat and largest town, 27,000 population). Around 30 per cent buy farm supplies and groceries there, 50 per cent shoes and 60 per cent furniture and clothing. Others trade mostly in smaller towns or villages of which there are more than a dozen in the county.

In spite of good roads to larger centers, rural dwellers still depend on the home town for many of their facilities and services, says a market survey made by the local chamber of commerce in co-operation with the state chamber and the University of Wisconsin.

Marathon county's farmers intended to spend 7½ million dollars within two years after the war, largest amount going into autos and trucks, with farm machinery a close second and repair and remodeling of farm buildings next. Installation of water systems is principal home repair item; refrigerators the most universally desired appliance.

One in 12 farm families hoped to build new houses at an average cost of $2,300. More than half of the farmers plan to pay for purchases out of money saved, 12 per cent use farm credit, 18 per cent both.

This is even more interesting, if one recalls that Marathon with more than 1,000,000 acres of land, ranks tops among all counties in production of American cheese and fifth in milk, with more than 182 million quarts annually. And more, it has the largest silver fox raising center in the United States.

Demand for Peanuts Still Big in 1946

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA.—Prices for 1946 peanuts, tenth largest field crop in America, will receive government support if necessary. But Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson told 400 growers, processors and shippers from 23 states here that he did not think price help would be needed.

A war emergency crop that increased four times to a total acreage of three million in four years, peanuts are in high demand in 1946, the secretary said. He and other government experts warned, however, that soon peanuts will face a buyer's market.

Relics Were Saved

STEVENSON, WASH. — Mrs. Mary V. Lane of Underwood, a lineal descendant of the last chief of the Cascade Indians, is the owner of one of the most valuable collections of Indian relics in the Northwest. She was among those who lost their homes by fire.

But the collection was safe. It was on exhibition at the Maryhill museum.

WATER FOR NEW FARMS . . . A crowd of 5,000 attended dedication ceremonies as water was turned on at the 50,000-acre Deschutes irrigation project in Central Oregon. The life-giving water will make the desert bloom.

Project Means 800 New Oregon Farms

In former years of dry farming the entire 50,000 acres were owned by 25 families, but the bureau of reclamation has brought water to the Deschutes project in central Oregon and there will be 800 new farms operating soon.

The Deschutes project is one of the first concrete postwar steps to provide farming opportunities for qualified veterans in the West. Already 80 veterans have found homes on the project, and many more are being considered. The clearing and leveling of the land, building of homes, schools and roads, makes the enterprise one of modern pioneering.

The first water was turned on the land on May 18 and there will be many green fields this season. Eventually the entire 50,000 acres will be under cultivation, or put into permanent irrigated pasture.

Making Roosters Taste Like Hens

BATON ROUGE, LA. — The Louisiana State university poultry husbandry division is experimenting with the prospects of converting the stringy meat of roosters into the tenderness of a hen's.

The scientists are injecting synthetic female hormones to give the rooster more desirable meat qualities. The roosters, after four to six weeks of the injections, shrink in size and develop layers of fat, a prime requisite for tender meat.

Have Florida Men Design Chapeaux

PANAMA CITY, FLA.—At a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Blackwell here recently, the women got retribution for the caustic comments the men had dropped about women's hats. They gave the men colored materials, flowers, a variety of possible trimmings and told them to design women's hats themselves.

The men accepted the challenge and really went to work. The ladies admitted that some of the chapeaux created were too bad!

Auto Man Gets Horse and Buggy Wedding Trip

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—When LeRoy Ehlers, auto mechanic, took Miss Erma Felhofer as his bride at the Valmy church, his co-workers at the garage where he is employed rigged him up in style befitting an automobile man.

When the couple emerged from the church a surrey (with the fringe on top) awaited them. A coachman, Hugo Kalms, in formal dress, stood stiffly by the horses. Mr. and Mrs. Ehlers got into the surrey and drove to the Ed Felhofer home where dinner was served.

Thus, after a half-century, automobile men heed grandpa's snapper: "Get a horse!"

Autos and Dogs Help City Funds

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILL. —There has been a sudden spurt in total license receipts in this town. Forrest Davis, village clerk, says it can be traced to autos, dogs and business houses.

Automobile receipts during the first quarter of 1946 increased over $500, and business licenses have yielded $1,000 more. But the greatest gain in percentage has been from sale of dog licenses, which jumped from $410 for all of 1945 to $859 for the first quarter of 1946.

"It's not a case of more dogs," Police Chief Skoog explained. "We've just got 'em educated to buying dog tags."

In other words, a stray dog doesn't stray far in Arlington Heights unless it has a license. Officials recommend similar "educational" campaigns for other towns.

IT WILL be interesting to note what will happen when baseball returns to a more normal way of life. We took up this somewhat twisted matter with Bill Dickey, the Yankees' new manager.

"This has been one of the strangest seasons I've ever run across," the loose-joined "Arkansas Traveler" said. "Suppose, for example, we had known back in Florida during our training season that the Yankees were going to get good pitching. That was supposed to be our weakest spot because so many of our men were troubled with bad arms. We would have been picked as one of the surest things of the year, rated well in front."

"But suppose we had known that after six weeks of play our team batting would be around .240 with such fine hitters as Joe DiMaggio and most of the others hitting below .260. Then, we would have been picked far down the list. Hard hitting has been the Yankees' main factor in winning ball games, but as a team we haven't been hitting a half lick."

"You don't think this hitting weakness will last?" we asked.

"I certainly don't," Bill said. "No pitchers are going to keep such hard hitters as DiMaggio, Keller—who has been our best—Stirnweiss, Eiten, Lindell, Henrich, Gordon and the others bottled up much longer. Those fellows can hit. They are naturals. I happen to know that Joe DiMaggio was banking on this season being his best year. I've never seen any one work harder, or try harder or train harder. His fielding and his home-run hitting have been exceptional. I don't believe this slump in hitting can last."

"We may have more trouble with our pitching, with so many really good pitchers bothered with bad arms or backs, but we are due to get much better hitting—and we'll have to get it if we are to win again. We can't win the pennant the way we're going now."

Dickey and the Red Sox

We asked Manager Dickey what he thought of the Red Sox and the chance the Yankees and other American League clubs had of closing the gap.

"I'll tell you exactly what I think of the Red Sox," Bill said. "I never like to underestimate an opponent. In my opinion, they have a first-class manager in Joe Cronin, who failed in the past because the winning material wasn't there. Cronin isn't going to lose any pennant for his club. Joe will do his share."

"The Red Sox have the strongest team they ever have shown. They have a fine infield and a strong outfield. They have had the hitting and the pitching—and I honestly think that so far they have out-hustled the rest of us."

"In Pesky and Doerr, the Red Sox have a great mid-infield combination, both on offense and defense. Pesky today is a greatly improved ballplayer. He means a lot to that club. Cronin certainly has a much stronger pitching staff than anyone looked for last March—Hughson, Harris, Ferriss and Dobson are about as good as any manager could ask for."

"This doesn't mean," Dickey said with a grin, "that I am picking the Red Sox to win the pennant. I think we can catch them, but I know we can't wait too long. They are too good to be given any big lead, and I believe the Yankees are just beginning to realize this. They have been strong on both offense and defense and they've fine spirit."

"What about the rest of the league so far?" we asked.

"You can't overlook Washington," he said. "This is a good, steady, consistent club all along the line. You also will see Detroit get much better pitching than the Tigers have known thus far. Their pitching has been like the Yankees' hitting—too far below normal to remain that way. When their pitching gets as hot as it can get, and they begin to hit nearer their stride, you'll see a big change."

Dickey, who has the full support of Larry MacPhail, and who has enjoyed so many years of training under Joe McCarthy—the manager Bill ranks far above all others in baseball—is giving everything he has to the job of making good. With a cool head and a stout heart with which to work, he doesn't expect to pick up all the needed managerial details in a few days or in a few weeks.

Bill has the complete affection and respect of his players, and it is my opinion that he will make few mistakes in directing up to the hilt the material he has at hand. Like other great catcher-managers—Bill Carrigan and Mickey Cochrane, for example—he has been in the best spot to know what is going on, especially in the direction of a pitching staff that still is uncertain.

No one knows better than Larry MacPhail and Bill Dickey that the Yankees need one or two more ballplayers to carry anything like an even chance to overtake Boston.

Economical Milking Parlor for Farm

Saving in Capital And Labor Costs

Economy, both in initial cost and labor, is the chief attribute of the pen-type dairy barn with attached milking parlor used by many dairymen. It is particularly advantageous when adding to the size of the herd. The cows are allowed to run loose in the barn and are milked and fed in an adjoining lean-to milking parlor.

The total cost for materials of the lean-to shown in the sketch would be approximately $900, including a fire-resistant asphalt roll roofing and gypsum exterior walls. This will permit the farmer to qualify for producing Grade A milk.

The six-stall parlor is large enough for a 30-cow herd. It does increase the amount of bedding needed by nearly 50 per cent. This results in a corresponding increase in manure value.

One of the main advantages of this type construction is that the herd may be added to without expense of new stanchions.

Farm Safety Week to Stop Accident Gains

Making life on the farm safer for children and adults is the basic aim of Farm Safety Week. President Truman, in proclaiming the week, July 21 to 27, suggested "that the Proper confinement for the bull may save lives.

farm people of the country observe the week by resolving to eliminate at least one hazard a day until their farms are as safe as they can possibly make them."

Open wells, improperly fenced dangerous animals, ladders, dangerous parts of machinery unprotected, cluttered barnyards, all take toll of thousands of farm children and adults annually.

Grit and Shell Box

An easy to build grit and shell box for the laying house may be made of box lumber but should be strong enough so that it can be nailed to the side of the house, six inches above the litter.

Concrete Measuring

Box for Measuring Concrete Materials.

A box for measuring sand and gravel is shown in the illustration. For a 1:3:5 mixture the frame should measure inside 4 feet seven inches, 2 feet wide and 1 foot deep. On the inside and 33 inches from one end, a partition is placed.

Ants in Garden May Be Controlled by Pyrethrum

Ants in lawns, fields and gardens can be controlled with a concentrated pyrethrum product, according to W. A. Price, Kentucky experiment station. A preparation containing 2 per cent in a vegetable oil soap is recommended. The dosage should be applied at the rate of one tablespoonful to a gallon of water. A gallon is sufficient for a hill 12 inches in diameter and two inches high.
